

I fully support NJ's Do Not Call law and urge you to support it, too. For far too long our lives have been intruded upon by telemarketers, and the relief this past year has been palpable. We can talk with our spouses and our kids during dinner now without interruptions. Today, with the Do Not Call law in place, our time is our own again. The telephone is a wonderful tool. You must not let it be used as a weapon again - a mindless weapon that wastes our time and hurts our lives. Sales companies have rights, too. Upholding this law does not abridge those rights because they can still send us junk mail, run ads on TV and radio and on the Internet. But in all those cases, we can choose to deny the communication. It's different with a phone. You must answer it before you find out that someone is wasting your time. I own my phone. I pay for it. It is my resource. Please do not grant to someone else the right to commandeer my communication tool in a way that deprives me of peace and quiet. When massive incoming calls can be made to my phone, my right to privacy, peace and quiet is abridged. The Constitution protects me. Do not let this right be usurped. Please: Support NJ's Do Not Call law. Thank you.
